ITEM 5.02. Departure of Directors or Certain Officers; Election of Directors; Appointment of Certain Officers; Compensatory Arrangements of Certain Officers.

On April 3, 2007, The Cooper Companies, Inc. issued a press release to announce management changes with Robert S. Weiss, currently Cooper's executive vice president and chief operating officer, assuming additional duties as president of CooperVision, Inc., reporting to A. Thomas Bender, Cooper's chairman and chief executive officer. Mr. Weiss will have direct responsibility for CooperVision's worldwide business and for CooperSurgical, the Company's women's health medical device business. Steven M. Neil, currently vice president and chief financial officer, has been named executive vice president and chief financial officer, reporting to Mr. Weiss. His expanded role will include overseeing the integration of CooperVision's financial and information technology functions into the Company's headquarters' operations. Gregory A. Fryling, currently president of CooperVision, Inc., will be leaving CooperVision to pursue other opportunities.

The release also said that Mr. Bender has expressed his desire to relinquish his role as chief executive officer by the end of 2007, but expects to have a continuing role in the Company thereafter. Cooper's Board has been engaged in a succession planning process and is considering both internal and external candidates for chief executive officer in its search process.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASETHE COOPER COMPANIES ANNOUNCES RESTRUCTURING AND MANAGEMENT CHANGES

LAKE FOREST, Calif., April 3, 2007 — The Cooper Companies, Inc. (NYSE:COO) said today that as part of the continuing integration of Ocular Sciences, Inc., which was acquired in January of 2005, it is combining its CooperVision and Cooper Companies headquarters operations and announced the following management changes.

- Robert S. Weiss, currently Cooper's executive vice president and chief operating officer has assumed additional duties as president of CooperVision, Inc., reporting to A. Thomas Bender, Cooper's chairman and chief executive officer. Weiss will have direct responsibility for CooperVision's worldwide business and for CooperSurgical, the Company's women's health medical device business.
- Steven M. Neil, currently vice president and chief financial officer, has been named executive vice president and chief financial officer, reporting to Weiss. His expanded role will include overseeing the integration of CooperVision's financial and information technology functions into the Company's headquarters' operations.
- Gregory A. Fryling, currently president of CooperVision, Inc., will be leaving CooperVision to pursue other opportunities.

Commenting on the new structure, Bender said, "We are nearing the completion of our three-year integration plan following the acquisition of Ocular. Combining CooperVision and The Cooper Companies headquarters is an important step in streamlining our business.

"I want to personally thank Greg Fryling for 22 years of service and an outstanding job throughout the Ocular integration process. Over the years, Greg played a key role in CooperVision's business development program leading our efforts to acquire Aspect Vision, Biocompatibles and Ocular Sciences. We wish him every success in the future."

Separately, the Company said that Bender has expressed his desire to relinquish his role as chief executive officer by the end of 2007, but expects to have a continuing role in the Company thereafter. Cooper's Board has been engaged in a succession planning process and is considering both internal and external candidates for chief executive officer in its search process.
